Methodology:

CHANAN selected the groups who has the experience in field to implement these kinds of street theater projects with CHANAN, the performers of the groups were local young professional who know the areas, locality, cultural and language barriers very well. To reach to the maximum female voter, CHANAN groups engage the female performer with them. UNDP provide the initial guideline to develop a script on voter education, so initially CHANAN developed a script on the given guidelines keeping in view the cultural norms. The script was being shared with UNDP, after the feedback from UNDP; a final script was shared with groups to practice in local language. Groups translate the script in local language and practice it accordingly.

A three days capacity building was conducted for all teams of Province Punjab and Sindh respectively. Before moving the theater teams in the field, district coordinator and theater group coordinator of each group visited in their respective district for contact building, preparations, meeting with key stakeholders etc.

All theater groups arranged the props, uniforms, sound system and local facilitator to start the street theater activities. The theater groups mobilized the audience by playing different cultural beats (dholk), songs, displaying banner, distribution of IEC material and inviting audience to see the theater performance. The groups selected a location and welcomed the audience on behalf of CHANAN and UNDP.

The theater groups began the sessions with a welcome speech and cultural song. They made it very clear that they were not supporting a political party and these performances were conducted as a social responsibility to spread awareness and information. They explained the local government structure and its functions, the number and colors of ballot papers, the importance of voting to solve local issues and the importance of women voting. They demonstrated how to fold a ballot paper with a colored paper and how to put it in the ballot box. They explained the original CNIC requirement to cast a vote on the polling day. They announced the date of the election and the time of polling repeatedly. They also emphasized separate polling booths for men and women at the polling stations. The group pasted and distributed IEC material at the end of the theater play. As the groups distributed IEC material, they read out the text on the material and explain the process and importance of vote. They also had a Q&A session to make sure the audience especially women clearly understood the messages in the performances.

The Question was:

- 1- How was play?
- 2- What was the major learning's for you in the play?
- 3- Do we cast our vote for free and fair local government elections?
- 4- Is it important for women to cast their vote? If so, why?
- 5- Will you go vote with your families on Election Day?
- 6- Will you inform other son the importance of voting and will you encourage others (both men and women) to cast their vote?

- Theater performance were conducted in different spots of Tehsils/UC's including chowks, baithak/authaq, markets, railway stations, bus stops, loriadas, colleges, academies, parks, parks, BHU, bazaar, villages etc.
- The primary target audience for these performances was:-
- Women (including young women) who are registered to vote

The secondary target audiences for these performances were:-

- Men (including young men) to encourage women voting and
- Men (including young men) who are registered to vote

Challenges:

- Due to cultural bounds (Parda) women are not allowed to take part in such kind of activities, some of the UC's are Lilla, Toba, Ghujar and Janjeel of District Jhelum, UC BESA of Sary Alam gir, Hazarn Mughlaan of Gujrat.
- Video recordings and pictures were not allowed due to cultural norms in some UC's of the selected districts
- Christian community have the boycotted due to LGE act amendments 2015 so it was very difficult to talk about the elections under these circumstances.
- Teams were not allowed to use sound system in respect of Muharam
- Group faced some security issues in 21UC's due to feudalism etc, team did not perform in those UC's.
- Political partyrepresentativescreated hurdles for one of the groupsbecause they assumed that theymight be associated with another political party. The name of some Union Councils have changed, which caused some confusion. The challenge was over come with the support of the key persons of the locality.
- It is observed that in order to engage the female participants, we need to have official authority letter from the District Government
- UC's names are changed, mostly people don't know the name of their UC's, which was a challenge for theater groups, so proper UC's name should be provided by the ECP or the concerned authorities in future

Suggestions / Recommendation by the audience:

- Team should perform to the secure venues to avoid the security issues
- Such type of programs should be conducted in every village
- Groups should keep the program continue by the local resources or with some other partners
- Engage more audience to create a sense of theatre in the society
- There should be proper involvement of government for these kind of programs in future
- Women should be more focus for the better impact, so these kinds of program should be design for colleges, universities, vocational centers, women centers etc
- Media should also be mobilized for the better and broader coverage
- These kinds of projects should be implemented earlier on for the awareness of CNIC, to enhance the turnout
- These programs should start two or three months before.
- Design some more attractive IEC material for community to spread our message in more attractive ways, i.e. t-shirts, caps, bags, pen etc.
- Number of theater performances should be increased according to the number of villages in each UCs
- There should be some other awareness programs in the areas where theater performance were conducted, i.e. community sessions, dialogues, discussion events, community meetings etc.
- Performances should be presented in front of government officials as well particularly the departments working on Human rights and Elections
- There should be some more theater or awareness program to measure to impact of the program after elections, i.e. focus group discussions, interviews, community meetings etc.
- A female theater performer's team should be trained for each district in future, it will help to reach the maximum female audience.
